User Queries

The queries that you submit to ChatLaw, a free Colit LLC service, and the answers generated are stored in our servers in order to provide service.

If your query relates to a matter or case has been designated by a court or by the parties as being confidential or restricted, you should utilize ChatLaw pursuant to the appropriate terms of your matter or case. This includes the substance and detail of the queries you submit.

Training Data and Third Parties

Your queries are not used to train AI models. To provide service, your queries are sent to a third-party AI provider such as OpenAI.

This third-party has its own privacy policy. This policy states that user data is not used to train AI models, is not shared with any other parties, and is retained for no more than 30 days.

Colit LLC does not share your queries and generated answers with any other third parties.

Personal Information and Cookies

No personal identifying information is collected other than IP addresses, to monitor for abuse.

No cookies are set.

Data Security

We employ standard security measures to protect against unauthorized access to your queries and generated answers.

Policy Effective Date

This policy is dated Jan 1st 2025.
